Augustine's obsession with sex is in one sense an obsession with women, and it is the last obstacle to his full embrace of Christianity. Women in the Confessions are only lovers or mothers, and they achieve full worth only when they become chaste — Monica as a widow and the concubine as self-avowed celibate. No female scholars are among Augustine's crucially important circle of friends, nor did he have any female students.

The East Anglian witchcraft trials elicited many similar confessions featuring sex and demonic magic. The trials, which lasted from 1645 to 1647, amidst the turmoil of the English Civil Wars, represent England's most intensive bout of witch-hunting, and resulted in the execution of about one hundred individuals, the vast majority of whom were women over the age of fifty .
